ON FOREIGN LANDS.

Dom Pedro, the Ex-Emperor, Broken in Spirit and Purse.

EMPEROR WILLIAM AN AUTHOR.

A Fantastic Pamphlet Credited to His Pen—Deep Aversion to Water in Moscow.

(SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE RECORD-UNION.)

LOUDLY DENOUNCED.

English Officers Censured for the Modus Vivendi Negotiations.

HALFAN, April 6th. Advice from Newfoundland show a high state of excitement throughout the colony over the fishery modus vivendi negotiated by Great Britain. Newfoundlanders claim that Great Britain has sacrificed the sacred rights belonging to the island. Demonstrations are being held all over the country denouncing the Downing street official. A great mass meeting at St. John, at which 4,000 people were present, passed the strongest and most denunciatory resolutions that could be conceived. The speakers were cheered to the echo.

Business was wholly suspended for the day and a process on of 10,000 paraded the streets with banners. The United States flag figured prominently in the "Star Spangled Banner" was played, and 60,000 persons shouted themselves hoarse. Delegations will be dispatched to England, Scotland and Ireland to gain public sympathy so that such pressure may be brought to bear on the Salisbury Government as to induce it to repudiate the treaty. If this fails the colony will ask for redress and protection from the United States under annexation.

The French have pulled down several lobster factories at Hawling Point and the fishermen have been called upon to turn themselves with guns and men the factories with Gatling guns to end further molestation or encroachment. The people have asked not only for redress but in the slightest degree to the treaty, but unite in driving the French away from the shores of Newfoundland.

SIGNS OF REVOLT.

Bismarck's Retirement Has Caused Much Discontent in the Empire.

NEW YORK, April 6th.—A Vienna letter to the Tribune says: The Southern States of the German Empire are beginning to manifest very serious signs of revolt against the despotic and encroaching nature of the control which the Prussian Government has gradually acquired over their affairs. Memories of military glory warmed their hearts to old Emperor William and especially toward Emperor Frederick, who had commanded a Southern army corps in the war of 1870. No sentiment, however, of his heart toward the new Emperor, who has taken but a cold and distant affectionate regard which his lamented father enjoyed.

Under the present Imperial reign there is nothing to soften or to palliate the tyranny of Prussian interference. Only Bismarck's name is sufficient to excite belief in his far-reaching power and presence have hitherto prevented the South Germans from giving vent to their feelings. But now that the great Chancellor has been ousted and set aside by his presumptuous and ungrateful young master, the Southerners have no longer any reason for maintaining silence.

In Bavaria, in Baden, in Saxony and in Westphalia the situation has become so ominous and grows of day by day. The result is that General Von Alvensleben, the Prussian Commander of the War, has been ordered to move his army in all haste to Berlin in order to confer with the Emperor with regard to measures to be adopted for dealing with the trouble.

POOR DOM PEDRO.

He Believes that He Has Been Robbed and Will Die of Starvation.

PARIS, April 6th.—For some time extraordinary rumors have been brought to Paris from Cannes where the ex-emperor of Brazil, Dom Pedro, is constantly breaking into fits of violent passion for the most trivial causes. These outbreaks are followed by a terrible depression, when he is seen wandering about his apartments, moaning and weeping like a child. The last outbreak of this description was when he received from the Provisional Government in Rio the announcement that he was to receive money which they proposed to make him on the sales of his Brazilian properties.

What caused his fury was the preamble of the decree of allotment, in which it was stated that the object of the measure was to relieve the well-to-do financial elements of the empire of the burden of the debts of the ex-emperor. Dom Pedro burst into a fit of passion and exclaimed: "What do they mean, is it possible? Do they take me for a beggar that they should insult me with their charity? Write to them at once, tell them that I am not a beggar. They have robbed me of my wife and my throne. Let them rob me of my money also." A few minutes later he was broken down and exclaimed: "It is true, all the same, that I am ruined. What will become of me?"

Since then he appears to have got a fixed idea into his head that he will be left bereft of all without resources and will die of starvation.

IN A FALSEST KEY.

The Emperor of Germany Thinks the Pen Mightier Than the Sword.

LONDON, April 6th.—Emperor William has been spending much of his spare time in study. He is engaged upon the preparation of a speech which he has decided to deliver in person at the opening of the Reichstag. The speech will be the first ever delivered from the German throne, according to current reports, among other things being another essay upon capital and labor.

The Kaiser is also credited with the authorship of the most sensational pamphlet published anonymously in Berlin, in which imperial socialism is fully explained and justified. The pamphlet gravely asserts that the Emperor is the head of a secret society which numbers among its members Capivi and the Minister of War, which has for its object the overthrow of the Democratic parties alienated by Bismarck.

The Emperor sees the monarchial principle gradually sinking, but the fact simply stimulates him to daring deeds. The book is pitched in a false key, highly suggestive of Kaiser Wilhelm and his reign, and is so melodramatic and fantastic that it may well be the creation of his restless brain, but for the moment it is the only discoverable only by conjecture and inference.

QUEEN VICTORIA.

She is Almost Too Fat to Breathe Yet She Will Not Abdicade.

LONDON, April 6th.—There is not much danger of Queen Victoria abdicating the throne of England in favor of Albert Edward of Wales as long as she lives. Just before her departure for Aix les Bains it was rumored here that she had voluntarily surrendered the position which she has held since June 20, 1837. The reason alleged by those who credited the rumor was many fold. It has been known for a long time that Victoria's health is very precarious. She is a victim of rheumatism, and for months has been unable to move about, except with the aid of a walking-stick. In addition to this she has become very corpulent and the Court physicians can do but little to remedy this great difficulty. She has placed herself upon the strictest diet, and is obliged to undergo severe massage treatment daily to enable her to breathe easily. Her present visit to the baths of Aix les Bains is for the purpose of getting rid of some of her superfluous flesh.

She is well convinced of the fact that she cannot live much longer, and that it is no longer possible for her to show herself in public, as the English public would wish, but she is not able to attend, as she would like to, to public business.

Another reason advanced for abdication by those who imagine that she would surrender her rights, was the recent visit of the Prince of Wales to Germany and a little while before the visit of Emperor William to England.

In spite of the frivolities of his early life, Albert Edward has always been the favorite child of the Queen. When, some months ago, the youthful Emperor of Germany came here and received the honors of the army and the sashes of his own and the British flag, the Queen was undoubtedly touched by the sympathy of her mother in the Queen to see her first son, as yet only a Prince, and lower down in the social scale than the head of the Hohenzollerns.

Wales undoubtedly felt this difference keenly, and April 6th of his ill health were sent out to excuse him from appearing any other than possible. Much the same thing happened during the recent visit to Berlin, and was said by those who advanced the theory of abdication that Victoria, after a long life of power, would relinquish the reins of government to her son, and as King of England he would take a precedence denied him now.

But Victoria will not abdicate. As long as she lives she will be Queen of England, and Albert Edward, in spite of his discomfiture, must remain Prince of Wales. His health is not such a serious matter as the possibility that his mother may outlive him. In that event Albert Victor would succeed her, and not such a representative as Victoria would select, nor is he popular here; but one thing is firmly believed here, and that is, that Victoria will never voluntarily surrender the throne.

THE GREAT UNWASHED.

The People of Moscow Are Opposed to the Use of Water.

Moscow, April 6th.—The following is forwarded by the Tribune correspondent: The deep-rooted aversion of Tatars, or Tatars, to that particular virtue which is popularly supposed to man next to gold, has received remarkable illustration in Russia.

It is well known and enormously well illustrated by the Tatars of this place, determined some years ago to supply one of the necessities of his fellow-citizens by erecting public baths of the most complete and elaborate description under the shadow of the walls of the Kremlin. Not only was an enormous sum of money expended, but also for the masses, and a "unique provision" was made to have the baths heated by steam, and the water of the city.

Mejorow spent many millions of rubles in constructing and furnishing the baths, and the result was that the Tatars, who were the most complete and elaborate description under the shadow of the walls of the Kremlin. Not only was an enormous sum of money expended, but also for the masses, and a "unique provision" was made to have the baths heated by steam, and the water of the city.

Disinfecting, however, by the prospects of so much cleanliness, the Tatars determined to devote all their efforts to frustrate the philanthropic intentions of M. Mejorow, and a few days before the date appointed for the opening of the baths, the Tatars, who were the most complete and elaborate description under the shadow of the walls of the Kremlin.
